Communication to employees of Discovery Communications, LLC:

Public Company Transaction Moving Forward: A Message from John Hendricks and David Zaslav

Following last week's announcement, we are pleased to report that Discovery Holding Company and Advance/Newhouse have now passed the next significant milestone in the process of consolidating their ownership interests and transforming Discovery Communications into a fully public company by making certain necessary filings with the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC).

This is an exciting development for Discovery and will bring many benefits to help grow our businesses and brands in today's competitive global marketplace. The SEC will now have the opportunity to review and comment on these filings before they are finalized and sent to DHC shareholders for a vote to approve the transaction.

Benefits of Becoming a Fully Public Company

As you have heard, one of the anticipated benefits of this new structure is that, from an investment community perspective, Discovery will become a pure-play content company that will be easier for investors and analysts to understand. This new structure will provide significantly improved disclosure regarding Discovery's operating performance and growth strategy, including greater transparency with regard to important financial information.

In addition, as a management team, we will have increased financial flexibility to drive innovation and pursue areas of strategic investment. The company will also have the ability to more directly align our employee compensation and incentive plans with the company's overall performance.

What Comes Next

It is still too early to predict a specific closing date for the transaction, but we now expect that it will occur during the third quarter of this year. In the meantime, there are important steps that we must all begin to take to prepare ourselves and the company for becoming a fully public company including many new operational, legal and regulatory responsibilities. We have to demonstrate to investors and regulators that we are committed to the highest levels of completeness, timeliness and accuracy in our financial reporting.

Beginning Thursday at our Global Town Hall, you will be hearing about the training and development programs that will help all of us get smart about our business and understand what will be required as employees of a public company. Most importantly, we have to understand and comply with all relevant laws, regulations and company policies at all times, and act with honesty, integrity and professional conduct in everything we do. We have every confidence that the people who make up Discovery will have no problem continuing to represent the highest levels of professionalism and quality, just as you have for the past 23 years.

Getting a Head Start Now

Among the top priorities for the year are: i) continuing to improve our operating performance and grow our financial results; ii) ensuring that we are prepared for this transition; and iii) reinforcing our culture of honesty, integrity, and respect for one another and all of our clients, partners, talent and vendors.

With this transaction, as well as the recent launch of Planet Green and the many new programs on-air and in development, this is truly an historic time to be a part of Discovery. While DHC and Advance/Newhouse continue to move this transaction toward the finish line, let's do everything possible in order to be fully prepared to accept the baton when the time comes.

Thank you for the continued hard work and commitment to this great company. We appreciate it, and look forward to working with all of you in the next chapter of the Discovery story.
